PURPOSE AND OUTCOME

Course Overview

This course will provide students (1) an overview of adverse childhood experiences (ACEs), trauma, and the trauma-informed approach; (2) the opportunity to develop trauma-informed public health interventions to prevent ACEs/trauma and mitigate their effects using the social ecological model; and (4) practical instruction in the grant writing process.

Course Rationale

This course is needed because trauma and adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) represent a significant threat to public health. Trauma and ACEs are considered a public health epidemic and are associated with an increased risk of morbidity over the life course and early mortality. The CDC recommends the dissemination and implementation of trauma-informed approaches to prevent and mitigate trauma. Despite this public health need, at the time of the course creation, we found no graduate-level courses available in a school of public health that addressed trauma, ACEs, or trauma-informed public health approaches. We wish to fill this gap through this course. Additionally, most public health interventions take a public health deficit approach and focus solely on the risk factors faced by vulnerable populations. In contrast, trauma informed approaches focus on protective factors and view communities as valuable assets. Upon successful implementation of the instruction, students will be able to see public health problems and solutions through a trauma-informed lens. Students will also be experienced in designing public health interventions to address and prevent trauma and have experience writing a grant to address and mitigate trauma through trauma-informed approaches.

Relation to Program Outcomes

The graduate level course will build a foundation in public health with a focus on its application to creating strengths-based trauma-informed community-based public health approaches and interventions. Students completing this course will be able to understand how trauma, adverse childhood experiences (ACEs), and resilience affect an individual's and a community's well-being. Students will also be able to institute trauma-informed practices to building healthier communities.

Updated: 12/13/2023

Course Objectives and/or Goals

1. Define trauma, adverse childhood experiences (ACEs), and trauma-informed approaches within a public health approach
2. Compare and contrast the prevention and treatment of trauma at the primary, secondary, and tertiary public health prevention levels through SAMHSA or relevant journal articles
3. Develop trauma-informed, resilience-based public health interventions to address and prevent trauma and ACEs at all levels of the social ecological model, with particular emphasis on the community-level
4. Develop grant proposal that addresses trauma, ACEs, and/or a trauma-informed public health approach

Instructional Methods

This course is offered online, in weekly “modules.” Each module is made up of the following:

- 1.) Assigned readings (articles and other readings posted online to Canvas)
- 2.) Lectures/videos (posted online to Canvas)
- 3.) Discussion posts or other assignments due

What is expected of you?

You are expected to actively engage in the course throughout the semester. This course relies heavily on participation in the online discussion boards with instructor and classmates; your participation fosters a rich course experience for you and your peers. It is the sole responsibility of the student in online courses to keep up with course requirements. You are expected to do preparatory work (including reading and/or watching videos linked in Canvas) each week prior to participating in online discussion boards, which will be spent primarily on critical discussion and application of course content to real-world public health problems. Throughout online course discussions, you will be asked to initiate ideas, share relevant experiences, reflect on what your classmates post, and critique and extend the course readings and lectures. Participating actively requires that you are open to discussing your beliefs and how you define yourself while also opening yourself to other points of view and considering them critically. Rich discussion frequently entails disagreements not only about issues, but also about basic values. As a participant in this class, you are expected to be respectful toward others and their views, even if they are radically opposed to your own beliefs.

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

Course Components: (Note: Detailed instructions will be given for each assignment in Canvas as it draws near.)

Assignments

1. Syllabus Quiz and Content Warning: You are asked to complete a brief quiz on the syllabus and academic integrity prior to unlocking the course content on Canvas. In addition to this quiz, you are required to acknowledge the content warning. While these elements are ungraded, you must receive a 100% on the quiz and acknowledge the warning to unlock course materials.
2. Readings and Other Course Materials (Lectures/Videos): For each weekly module, you will be assigned specified journal articles or other readings to read. Within each module on Canvas, additional information may be provided (e.g., recorded lectures and/or videos). Whether these materials are required or optional will be described within that week's page on Canvas.
3. Online Discussion Participation & Weekly Activities: The exchange of ideas between colleagues is a key aspect of learning and is a required activity in this course. In several modules, we will have a group discussion component. You may also have short out-of-class assignments that you will discuss on the discussion board that will be considered part of this grade; more information on these assignments will be provided under the appropriate module. While you are graded on overall participation each week, you are required to complete each week's discussion post and reply to a minimum of one other student's post on that week's group board. Unless specified, discussion posts should address all questions in that week's prompt (you can separate sections by question # or write all answers in a narrative form, just be clear to indicate that you've answered all questions), and you should end your post in a way that engages the class in discussion (e.g., ending with a question to the group that will generate interesting discussion about the topic and must demonstrate critical thinking related to the week's readings/content). Appropriate questions include those that 1) seek clarity on course material; 2) relate the course material to other public health issues/theories or discussions we've had; 3) provide the basis for further investigation that would build on the readings; 4) generate interesting course discussion/debate. Please consult the rubric posted online on Canvas for an outline of what we are looking for in the discussion posts and how they will be scored. Students can earn up to 10 points each week for discussion participation, for a total of 100 points over the course of the semester. (There are 10 required discussions). Please remember to include citations in your discussion post using APA 7th edition citation style.
4. Grant Proposal Intervention Project: Students will select a specific target population and an area of ACEs/trauma that can be addressed through a public health intervention. Students will design a trauma-informed, resilience-based public health intervention that improves health, addresses a problem, and/or builds resilience within the population and selected ACEs/trauma area submitted in the form of a grant proposal. Students will select a level or levels of the social ecological model that the intervention will address. Students are required to follow the guidelines outlined in the assignment prompt (posted to Canvas). The proposal should utilize academic/research sources and class materials and APA 7th edition citation style references. This proposal will be broken into smaller parts with specific due dates throughout the course that provide the opportunity for revision and refinement of the final product prior to the completed submission at the end of the semester. Students can earn up to 90 total points (with partial points being assigned for each smaller part submitted).
5. PACEs Connection Assignment (Part 1 & 2): Profile Setup and PACEsConnection.com Blog Post: This assignment will require students to visit the PACEs Connection website: <http://www.pacesconnection.com> and set up a profile at the beginning of the semester. Students will also join the University of Florida (UF) Trauma-Informed Public Health Courses PACEs Connection community subpage at this link: <https://www.pacesconnection.com/g/university-of-florida-trauma-informed-public-health-courses-aces-connection>. On this page, students can read posts by students from previous semesters. Students will then write a short article related to the grant proposal intervention and publish it on the UF PACEs Connection subpage as a blog post. This assignment is worth 10 total points (1 point for part 1 & 9 points for part 2).

STUDENT EXPECTATIONS, ROLES, AND OPPORTUNITIES FOR INPUT

Teaching Philosophy

The aims of graduate school are different from those of undergraduate education. Undergraduate education is concerned primarily with instilling the essential knowledge in a field and—at its best—with preparing students for a lifetime of learning. Graduate education is about turning students into professional practitioners, researchers, and teachers. These different aims correspond to distinct responsibilities for both teachers and learners at the graduate and undergraduate levels. As professionals and aspiring professionals, you are responsible for taking initiative to master the key ideas and literature in the field and for seeking out the resources you need. My role is to facilitate your learning and professional development as independent scholars by introducing you to pertinent literature, by challenging you to evaluate and synthesize the material, and by rewarding individual initiative.

Diversity Statement

I consider this classroom to be a place where you will be treated with respect, and I welcome individuals of all ages, backgrounds, beliefs, ethnicities, genders, gender identities, gender expressions, national origins, religious affiliations, sexual orientations, ability – and other visible and nonvisible differences. All members of this class are expected to contribute to a respectful, welcoming, and inclusive environment for every other member of the class.

Inclusive Learning Environment

Public health and health professions are based on the belief in human dignity and on respect for the individual. As we share our personal beliefs inside or outside of the classroom, it is always with the understanding that we value and respect diversity of background, experience, and opinion, where every individual feels valued. We believe in, and promote, openness and tolerance of differences in ethnicity and culture, and we respect differing personal, spiritual, religious and political values. We further believe that celebrating such diversity enriches the quality of the educational experiences we provide our students and enhances our own personal and professional relationships. We embrace The University of Florida's Non-Discrimination Policy, which reads, "The University shall actively promote equal opportunity policies and practices conforming to laws against discrimination. The University is committed to non-discrimination with respect to race, creed, color, religion, age, disability, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, marital status, national origin, political opinions or affiliations, genetic information and veteran status as protected under the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act." If you have questions or concerns about your rights and responsibilities for inclusive learning environment, please see your instructor or refer to the Office of Multicultural & Diversity Affairs website: www.multicultural.ufl.edu.

Academic Integrity

Students are expected to act in accordance with the University of Florida policy on academic integrity. As a student at the University of Florida, you have committed yourself to uphold the Honor Code, which includes the following pledge:

"We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honesty and integrity."

You are expected to exhibit behavior consistent with this commitment to the UF academic community, and on all work submitted for credit at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied:

"On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment."

It is your individual responsibility to know and comply with all university policies and procedures regarding academic integrity and the Student Honor Code. Violations of the Honor Code at the University of Florida will not be tolerated. Violations will be reported to the Dean of Students Office for consideration of disciplinary action. For additional information regarding Academic Integrity, please see Student Conduct and Honor Code or the Graduate Student Website for additional details:

<https://sccr.dso.ufl.edu/process/honor-code/>
<http://www.graduateschool.ufl.edu/>

Please remember cheating, lying, misrepresentation, or plagiarism in any form is unacceptable and inexcusable behavior.

Turnitin

Academic integrity is a serious issue that has been a growing problem at universities. I have a zero tolerance policy for breaches of academic integrity, including plagiarism, self-plagiarism, and cheating. There are multiple video resources posted on our Canvas site that discuss plagiarism and how to properly quote and cite other people's work. With each assignment you complete you are pledging that you hold yourself and your classmates to the highest standards of academic integrity. I use an online tool called Turnitin to check student work for originality; in other words, your work should be in your own words and not copied from any source. Every student needs to watch the videos on plagiarism and on using Turnitin and needs to check their own Turnitin report, made available through the Canvas site automatically when you submit anything through assignments. You should submit assignments early enough to have time before the due date to make revisions to them if your Turnitin report shows areas of high similarity to online resources. Any student caught cheating or plagiarizing will be reported to the Dean of Students Office and will be subject to academic penalties in the course, at minimum. All assignments will be eligible to be run through Turnitin, even discussion posts, so please ensure you are paraphrasing and citing all submissions appropriately.

Policy Related to Plagiarism

Plagiarism, as defined in the UF Student Honor Code (<https://regulations.ufl.edu/wp-content/uploads/2018/06/4.040-1.pdf>), will not be tolerated. Plagiarism detection software (e.g., Turnitin) and other resources may be used to detect plagiarism. Assignments where the instructor deems that plagiarism has occurred may receive a zero grade and may be reported to the Dean of Students office as a Student Honor Code violation. APA provides guidelines on avoiding plagiarism; for more details you can also reference the Purdue Online Writing Lab website (https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/purdue_owl.html).

A Note on AI

Any work written, developed, created, or inspired by artificial intelligence (AI) is considered plagiarism and will not be tolerated. While the ever-changing (and exciting!) new developments with AI will find their place in our workforces and personal lives, in the realm of education and learning, this kind of technology does not belong. This is because the use of AI robs us all of the opportunity to learn from our experiences and from each other, to play with our creative freedoms, to problem-solve, and to contribute our ideas in authentic ways. Graduate school is a place for learning and this class is specifically a space for learning how to improve our writing. AI simply cannot do that learning for us.

Online Faculty Course Evaluation Process

Students are expected to provide professional and respectful feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing course evaluations online via GatorEvals. Guidance on how to give feedback in a professional and respectful manner is available at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/students/>. Students will be notified when the evaluation period opens and can complete evaluations through the email they receive from GatorEvals, in their Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via <https://ufl.bluera.com/ufl/>. Summaries of course evaluation results are available to students at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/public-results/>.

SUPPORT SERVICES

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

If you require classroom accommodation because of a disability, you must register with the Dean of Students Office <http://www.dso.ufl.edu> within the first week of class.
